Re: Proposed OSHA Air Quality Regulation

To whom it may concern:

I am the owner of two small auto dealerships located one block from each other. Our organization has already addressed the smoking situation at our facilities. We have specific locations where our customers who smoke can do so without bothering our customers who do not. We do not need further intervention by the government to make our customers feel comfortable. Inspections, fines, and dictated instructions from OSHA or any one else is totally unnessasary. Being as small as we are complying with these proposed mandates would severly cripple our business. I strongly urge you to do away with these proposals as we can handle this situation on our own. After all, it's in our best interest to make our customers feel at ease in our dealerships. Lord knows the rules and regulations the government has placed on the automotive industry is already enough to choke a horse. Further intervention will only serve to drive more small businesses out of business.

Sincerely,
